How NACW helps

We Sustain

We sustain our members by providing best practices and practical tools that can help them fulfill their missions.

We Strengthen

We strengthen our members by creating opportunities to develop professional skills and obtain technical support while building relationships and forming alliances with national partners.

We Advocate

We advocate for our members by cultivating a national network of supporters, communicating the value of women's commissions, and telling their story on the national level.

How businesses and organization can help:

Become a champion for women and girls by sponsoring our annual professional development event or all our professional development events for the year. Audiences vary from event to event, but you can count on the fact that everyone who attends them is passionate about serving women and girls and being a bridge between the public sector and communities.

By sponsoring one of our events, you will add your name to an initiative that shows you care about the status of women and girls and want to make a difference in their lives.

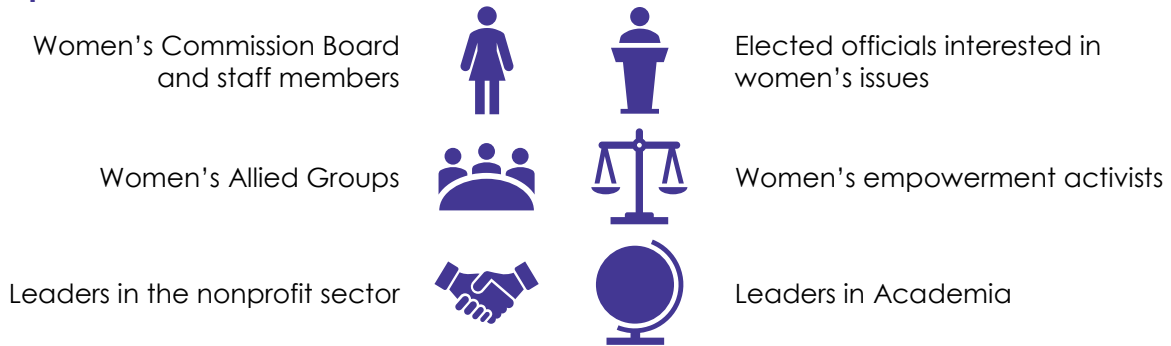

Annual Professional Development Event

Once a year, NACW members gather to learn about best practices and gain valuable professional development. In 2019, we will gather in Chicago, Illinois, for the 49th NACW Annual Meeting and Leadership Summit on July 22-24, 2019. This year's theme is Engineering Our Future: Blueprint for Women's Leadership. Our members will have the opportunity to engage in leadership development and peer-to-peer learning that will help them create innovative programming to address justice and equality for the women and girls in their communities.

Anticipated Audience

Other NACW Activities

Voices of American Women: We have launched a two-year listening project across the United States, asking our member commissions to conduct listening sessions or public town-hall styled forums to capture the voices of women in communities across the country. The goal is to provide a venue for women's voices, across the nation and to deliver a national report what the women of our country have told us are their concerns as women.

Commission Leadership Initiative and Mentorship Building (CLIMB): Emerging commissions and commissions in transition regularly face challenges in their effort to thrive and develop. Our CLIMB initiative will create a way for these commissions to receive specialized and consistent support and will serve to amplify and disseminate the extensive knowledge our member commissions have.

Webinars: NACW hosts webinars expose members to impactful and engaging programs they can implement in their own communities; effective leadership and governance issues that help them achieve operational excellence; and new and emerging public policy issues that they can pursue in their own communities. Webinars are held on Fridays at 3pm ET every 2 to 3 weeks.

"Venture" Fund: In order to serve our members, we are looking to establish a "venture" fund that would help to seed new and innovative projects, research emerging topics in gender equity, and provide technical assistance for our members by helping them attend our annual professional development event or send experienced members who can provide customized training for commissions.

About the National Association of Commissions for Women

Originally formed in 1970 as the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women (IACSW), the National Association of Commissions for Women (NACW) represents women's commissions at the state, county, and city levels across the country and provides support and resources so they can thrive. We represent our member commissions as their national advocate and provide a national voice of support for the efforts of our government-appointed commission members. These commissions hold a unique and positive role in promoting women's equity and justice in their local communities and, as members of NACW, join the national effort to address women's empowerment and equality.

Our mission is to sustain, strengthen and advocate for women's commissions in their work to promote equality and justice for all women and girls and ensure they are represented and empowered in their communities.
